TurnKey Internet, Inc. releases improved version of Voxwire web conferencing product

LATHAM, NEW YORK (July 22, 2013) – Sustainable IT solutions provider TurnKey Internet, Inc. announced today the release of their upgraded platform designed for their web conferencing product, Voxwire. Voxwire Systems, Inc. was acquired in 2009 by TurnKey Internet, who began supporting the product alongside their web hosting cloud services. Voxwire web conferencing can accommodate thousands of attendees per meeting with integrated audio and video, screen and file sharing, PowerPoint presentations, polling and other collaborative features.

Voxwire's platform has been enhanced to meet today's more mobile market. It is now compatible on all popular mobile systems including the iPhone, iPad, Android and BlackBerry and is being offered for a 14-day, no credit card required, free trial. Upon signing up, a free app can be installed on any of these devices, or can be used on a tablet, laptop or desktop. Multiple moderators can be assigned for small or large group presentations and can be broadcasted to unlimited users across the globe.

With the improved Voxwire platform, TurnKey aims to offer easier-to-use services to connect customers and colleagues across the globe from its green data center in Albany, New York. "Voxwire expands our reach to a wide range of industries that are integrating web conferencing into their daily operations," said CEO, Adam Wills. "Schools, businesses, or any entity looking to grow their distance learning or conference capabilities will find Voxwire is a perfect solution."
